

FIGURE 23–22 (a) Photograph, and (b) ray diagram showing why a person's legs look shorter standing in water: a ray from the bather's foot to the observer's eye bends at the water's surface, and our brain interprets the light as traveling in a straight line, from higher up (dashed line).

Giancoli: Physics