Lifehack: How to empty an aquarium

Fill the hose with water. Keep both ends closed with your thumbs,

Then place one end of the hose below the water's surface in the upper container. Open that end.

Next, lower the other end to the lower container, while still keeping this end closed. The lower end of the hose needs to be below the water's surface of the upper container.

Then, open the lower end of the hose. The water flows from the upper to the lower container, all by itself!
